If your email is not listed, configure your email using the Other option.

Joining a WI-FI network on the iPhone is similar to joining one on a Mac or PC. The first step is to locate nearby networks. Tap Settings then WI-FI from the Home screen. The WI-FI Networks screen displays WI-FI networks within range, and gives you the option to join an open or closed network.

The iPhone remembers which networks you join, treating them as known networks. Known networks remember any passwords and configuration information. The “Choose a Network” list on the WI-FI Settings screen displays a list of all available networks within range.
